PERIODICALS

I. New in the collection

State Policy Reports, published 24 times a year, covers topics of a very current nature which have to do with state government and in particular the governorships. The report contains significant statistics on the states and much of the material pertains to state budgets and state taxes - to state finances in general. A helpful aspect of this research tool is the comparisons between the states. Sample main headings in recent issues are as follows:

"Governors set Legislative Priorities for 1983," "Governors Propose Tax Measures," and "Federal Spending: Policy Implications for States."

PROGRAM NOTE

On Wednesday, August 17, the Library, in conjunction with the Legislative Service Bureau, sponsored a U.S. Bureau of Census presentation. Mr. Richard Ning of the Bureau of Census demonstrated the use of census data in the demographic analysis of a legislative district. Mr. Ning's timely presentation was enthusiastically received.

Additional programs on research processes are planned for the fall. Watch your mail and future issues of MEGASOURCE for announcements.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library's Special Collections include items which because of their age, format, visual interest or intrinsic value are distinguished from the general collections to receive extra care and preservation. One of the largest of these collections consists of maps and atlases from the 17th century to the present. Maps range from copies of the earliest plans of Boston to the latest state road map. All maps currently available are listed by title and subject in the library's card catalog.

Recent additions to the collection include:

Map
Mass.
Brockton
1853

Map of the town of North Bridgewater.

Published in 1853 by the well known mapmaker Henry F. Walling, this map shows a part of the city of Brockton and includes insets of some of the area's major buildings.

Map

Changes in the bed of Boston Harbor: from a comparison of the surveys of 1835 and 1861.

and

Two maps from the library's large collection of maps of Boston Harbor; compiled by the Massachusetts Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners.

Map
Mass.
Boston
1903

Plan of South Boston Flats: showing present conditions and sketch of proposed docks and streets.

Another in the series of maps issued by the Massachusetts Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners; details changes in this area of the shoreline.

All maps are housed in the Library's Annex, Room 55.

REFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

A. Directories

One of the key resources in our reference department is the collection of directories.

Directories provide an almost endless source of information in a reasonably easy to use and understand format. For example, everyone is familiar with the telephone directory, its arrangement and its contents. The State Library has a collection of phone books for each city and town in Massachusetts, for many major U.S. cities, including most of the State capitals of the other forty nine, and for a few foreign cities.

The Encyclopedia of Associations is another heavily used directory, as are the Directory of Massachusetts Manufacturers and the Lawyer's Weekly Guidebook.Those, however are less than the tip of the iceberg.

The most recent acquisition in this area, the Law and Legal Information Directory, second edition, (Paul Wasserman, ed. Detroit, c1983) is a gold mine of information. Divided into sixteen sections, it covers such topics as bar associations, Federal and state court systems, legal and paralegal education, libraries and research centers, and publishers of print and non-print material.

There are several directories which deal with the Washington bureaucracy, including the Washington Information Directory, the Congressional Staff Directory and the Federal and Congressional Yellow Books. On the state level, the State Information Book covers all fifty states, and many states put out individual directories to their legislative and executive branches.

For information on cities and towns all over the country, the Municipal Yearbook is helpful, and the Massachusetts Municipal Association's Directory covers this state's local public officials.

Locally, the library keeps recent city and town directories in the main reading room with back issues of many into the 1800's in the Annex, Room 55.

Of course, there are professional directories, for example, Martindale, Hubbell Law Directory and Who's Who in Health Care. There are hospital, social service agency and library directories, and directories of political, social, religious and professional organizations. Should the researcher not find exactly what is needed in the State Library's directories, the staff can provide the ultimate reference book - The Directory of Directories.

CALL FOR DOCUMENTS

The State Library is the official depository for all state agency publications. The documents produced by your agency are cataloged and added to our permanent collection. A copy of each document is microfilmed to ensure its preservation. In addition, the State Library offers state-wide access to state agency publications through the document depository system. Copies of documents are distributed to Boston Public Library, Springfield City Library, Worcester Public Library, University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Scholars and students throughout the country also have access to Massachusetts documents that the State Library sends to the Library of Congress.

UBLICATION: #13293-7-600-7-83-C.R. - APPROVED BY DANIEL CARTER, STATE PURCHASING AGENT

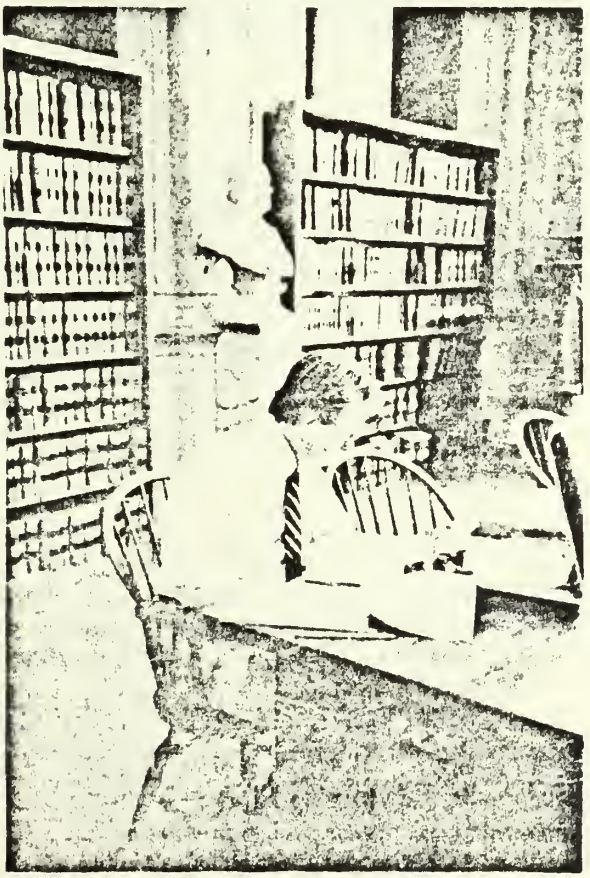
We do need your cooperation in building our vital state publications collection. Eight copies of all your agency's publications should be deposited with the State Library in accordance with Administrative Bulletin 76-5.

All the documents received by the State Library appear in the bulletin, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Publications, published quarterly by our staff. If you would like to be added to the mailing list, or if you have any questions about the depository program, call Mary Ann Neary or Susan Steinway at 727-6279.

RESEARCH SERVICES OFFERED

The staff of the State Library has recently completed a research guide on initiative and referendum petitions. The guide covers sources published from 1980 to the present concerning this topic. Copies of the guide are available at the Reference Desk in Room 341.

The Legislative Reference Division welcomes requests for similar research guides on topics of interest to the General Court. Please contact Pamela Schofield at 727-0327 with your suggestions.



PROGRAM NOTES

Librarians representing the Central and Eastern Massachusetts regions visited the State House recently in order to learn about the State Library's resources. Both groups enjoyed a multi-media presentation by the State Library staff. Program topics included: an introduction to the State Library and its services; legislative process; Special Collections.

Our staff is pleased to have had this opportunity to introduce other librarians to the State Library's unique resources.

Coming attractions...

Watch for two new displays coming soon. "Women in Massachusetts State Politics" will be the focus of the display in Room 442, the Library's fourth floor. A new display on arson will be featured outside Room 341, the main entrance of the Library.

New publication available

The latest publication by the State Library staff is a bibliography entitled, "Initiative and Referendum Petitions." This fourteen page publication lists sources of information in magazines, law journals and books from 1980 onward regarding initiative and referendum petitions. Copies are available at the Reference Desk in Room 341.

Colonel Alfred S. Hartwell Papers, 1862-1866.
This Civil War collection includes correspondence, statements, letterbooks, muster-in and muster-out rolls, and photographs concerning Col. Hartwell's service in the 44th, 54th and 55th Regiments, Massachusetts Infantry. Covers Hartwell's investigation into abuses in the recruiting and paying of bounties to black soldiers enlisted in the South for Union service.

New Acquisition

The State Library has recently received the records and papers of the Massachusetts Civic League; the papers date from the 1890's through the 1970's. A private organization, the League was formed in 1897 and worked closely with the Legislature to try to remedy social abuses in the treatment of children, the poor and the mentally ill. Its papers form a record of citizen involvement in the social issues of the times. Staff in the Special Collections Department will be arranging these materials in the next few weeks to make them available for research.

LEGISLATIVE DEVELOPMENTS

Recently enacted laws from other states, deemed to be of special interest, are summarized below.

CHILD CUSTODY

Connecticut. (1983 Conn. Legis. Serv. 83-481)

This act prohibits ex parte termination of parental custody unless a child is hospitalized due to serious physical injury and (A) two physicians swear that the child is in need of life-saving surgery, (B) parent refuses to consent to such surgery, and (C) a hearing for temporary custody can't await notice of a hearing.

Maine. (1983 Me. Legis. Serv. ch 564)

Joint child custody. When both parents agree to joint custody in open court, the court must consider the best interests of the child. If single custody is the decision, reasons for decision must be made clear.

HOMELESS

Connecticut. (1983 Conn. Legis. Serv. 83-532)

This act allows for the development of emergency shelters for the homeless by either (1) any public or private organization or agency, or (2) any town. The state will reimburse these groups for their expenditures.

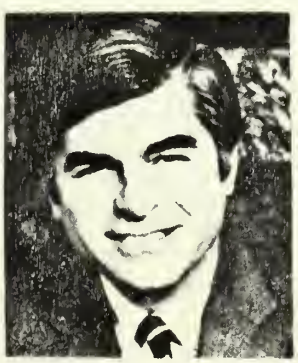
STATE OF THE STATE

Governor Dukakis identified the major priorities of state government for 1984 in his January 17th State of the State address. The State Library contains valuable research material in its collections relating to these concerns: infrastructure, public education and the criminal justice system.



The State Library, as part of its mission to fill the research needs of the executive and legislative branches of government, has compiled a selective guide to its resources in these three key areas. The collections include many more references on these topics

PUBLICATION: #13293-7-600-7-83-C.R. - APPROVED BY DANIEL CARTER, STATE PURCHASING AGENT

Please contact the Reference Department at 727-2590 or 2591 if you desire further information regarding the Library's collection and services.

PROGRAM NOTES

TOURS, ORIENTATION SESSIONS

The State Library regularly schedules tours of the Library and training sessions for users. These sessions include a brief introduction to major resources and services of the library.

If you would like to arrange tours or orientation sessions for your staff members, call us. We can tailor our presentation to fit your particular research needs and interests.

Pamela Schofield (Tel. 727-0327) or Mary Ann Neary (Tel. 727-2403) can arrange for tours as well as provide more information.

We welcome the opportunity to introduce you to the State Library.

EXHIBITS

Black History Month is being celebrated by the State Library in two new exhibits. "In Honor of Martin Luther King, Jr." is the title of a display outside the Library's main entrance, Room 341. Black representation in the Massachusetts General Court is the focus of the second display outside Room 341.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library's Special Collections include items which are distinguished from the general collections due to their age, format, visual interest, or intrinsic value. All of the materials in Special Collections are listed in the card catalogue and are available in Room 55 of the State House.

A recent addition to the Special Collections Department is:

A large photograph of the State House, taken in 1903 by Boston photographer, Elmer Chickering. It shows the State House from the Bowdoin Street side before the addition of the East and West Wings and provides a wealth of visual detail of the exterior and grounds of the building.

This photograph has been added to the Library's extensive collection of prints and photographs of the State House. These include depictions of the exterior of the building showing changes and additions to the structure and the grounds and interior views of this historic structure. Copies of early prints show the Bulfinch building as it was soon after its construction and modern photographs provide historic comparisons.

Prints can be made from most of the Library's photographs for a small charge.

PROGRAM NOTES

TOURS, ORIENTATION SESSIONS

The State Library, celebrating National Library Week during April 9-13, offered orientation sessions for state employees. Both Library staff and program participants enjoyed these sessions.

Other recent visitors to the State Library included: Communication Directors of various state agencies; members of the Special Commission to Study the Condition of Hispanics.

If you are interested in arranging a tour for your staff members, Pamela Schofield (Tel.727-0327) or Mary Ann Neary (Tel.727-2403) can provide assistance.

EXHIBITS

Current displays outside room 341 include: "An Historical Look at the Massachusetts State Library" and "Federal Depository Library Program." Both displays offer an interesting perspective on our work here at the State Library.

NEW PUBLICATION

"Unitary taxation, 1983-1984" is the subject of a new bibliography prepared by the State Library staff. Citations to current journal articles on unitary taxation comprise the publication.

NEW SERVICE

Computerized literature searching is a new service offered by the Reference staff. This service allows state government employees access to an even wider range of research material. Inquire at the Reference Desk for details of this new service.

THE BOSTON NEWSPAPER INDEX

Valuable resources available at the State Library include the retrospective and current indexes to area newspapers. Our staff answers requests for information from across the country by utilizing these indexes. The information contained in the indexes carries great importance for state employees who are researching Massachusetts and its people.

What are these indexes and where are they located?

I. Zimmer Newspaper Index

Started in 1892 by State Library staff, this card file index covers "current events" in Massachusetts. Years included are 1878-1937; all entries are from Massachusetts newspapers. These source newspapers were the Boston Globe, Boston Herald and the Boston Journal. The index is housed in the stacks. Access can be obtained by inquiring at the Periodical Desk. This index is unique to the State Library.

II. Boston Newspaper Index

A detailed index to the Boston Globe and the Boston Herald, this card file covers articles about Massachusetts government, politics and public affairs. It was compiled by State Library staff during the years 1962 - 1982. (Due to staff shortages, the index was curtailed from October 1980 through March 1982). Located on the balcony level (4th floor), this index provides wonderful insight into our state's history.

III. Boston Globe Index (Commercial editions)

Recently, private publishers have undertaken the task of indexing the Boston Globe in its entirety. Due to this development, State Library staff members have ceased their in-house indexing and are devoting their time to other projects. The Library subscribes to these commercial indexes. Coverage to date includes:

Boston Globe Index January - June 1982.
(Sanford, N.C.: Microfilming Corp. of America, 1983)

Newspaper Index to the Boston Globe January, 1983 - to present
(Wooster, OH: Bell and Howell)

AN ACT PROVIDING FOR THE ORDERLY DISTRIBUTION OF STATE PUBLICATIONS.

The State Library serves as the official depository for state agency publications. Each year, agencies devote valuable staff time and resources to the production of reports and studies. Unless these documents are deposited with the State Library, there is no assurance that they will be distributed and preserved for all Massachusetts residents' use.

Currently, the State Library maintains a complete document collection in the State House and a distribution network for state documents across Massachusetts. Libraries which receive copies of documents are: Boston Public Library; Worcester Public Library; Springfield City Library; University of Massachusetts at Amherst and the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

In addition, one copy of every state document sent to the State Library is microfilmed to ensure its preservation.

Help us to preserve a record of our state's achievements for present and future citizens. Lend your support to H4279.

The spirit of Massachusetts is the spirit of America.

Wednesday, April 25, 1984, marked the kick-off of Massachusetts' new tourism promotion campaign. Governor Dukakis characterized the campaign as one which will "showcase a state that is rich in both culture and history, highlight the beauty of our coastline, the majesty of our mountains and the heritage of our cities."

The State Library staff, drawing upon the Library's wealth of Massachusetts information, has compiled this issue of Megasource to demonstrate the variety of ways to explore our state - by land, by sea, or by air.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library's Special Collections area includes items which are distinguished from the general collection due to their age, format, visual interest or intrinsic value. All of the Special Collections are listed in the card catalog and are available in Room 55 of the State House.

Recent additions to the Special Collections include:

NA 735 .B7 A72 1983 — Massachusetts Committee for the Preservation of Architectural Records. Architectural records in Boston: a guide to architectural research in Boston, Cambridge and vicinity. Based on survey data gathered during on-site visits to architectural firms, libraries, archives and government agencies, this work outlines where records of architects are located and what types of architectural records may be found in each institution surveyed.

Ms. Coll. 3 — Alexander Parris Papers (1823-1851)

A manuscript collection consisting of correspondence, cost estimates, financial information and other material concerning several of Parris' architectural projects. These include Long Island's Black Rock Beacon, improvements to the Charlestown and Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Navy Yards, and various lighthouses.

A RECENT GIFT

We have recently received from the New Hampshire State Library a collection of Sanborn Fire Insurance atlases covering 50 or more Massachusetts communities. Issued for the insurance underwriting industry, the Sanborn atlases provide very detailed information on the physical design and construction of buildings and streets of individual communities. Most of these atlases were compiled in the early to mid-20th century. They are an excellent source of information for researchers interested in historic preservation, genealogy or urban planning. Staff members in Special Collections will be cataloging the newly-received volumes and integrating them with the Library's existing collection of Sanborn atlases, which covers 95 communities in Massachusetts.

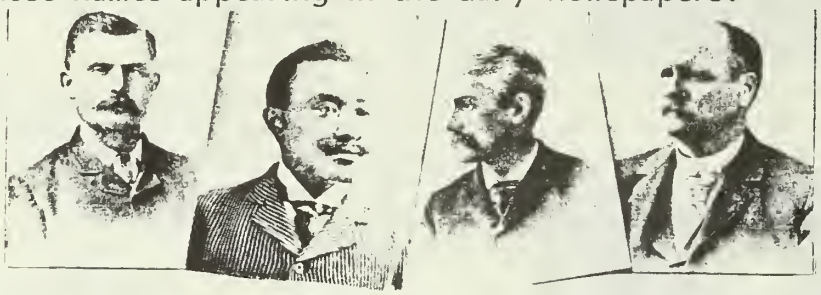
FROM SPECIAL COLLECTIONS...

As a new legislative year begins, interest turns as well to past legislative sessions and to former legislators. Of special note is the Library's collection of photographs of members of the General Court. The earliest photographs include one of Daniel Clark Eddy, a member of the Legislature in 1855, as well as an album of Senate members from that year; the collection proceeds through photograph albums of members in the 1880's and 1890's, to large group photographs of House members seated at their desks in the House Chamber in the 1890's and early 1900's.

Two printed sources also exist for finding photographs of legislators. One is the Legislative Souvenir, covering the years 1893-1917. Each volume contains photographs of the Governor, constitutional officers, Executive Council, United States Congressional delegation, and the members of the General Court. Included as well are shots of the exterior and interior of the State House and photographs of other familiar Boston landmarks.

Also of interest is the series of volumes entitled, Public Officers of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Known to its users as the "Bird Book", this small volume has been published continuously since 1908; an edition for the 1985 legislative session is expected shortly. Containing photographs of members of the Executive and Legislative branches, as well as some biographical detail, it is a handy guide for matching faces to those names appearing in the daily newspapers.



At various times, other types of information have been gathered concerning the Legislature, the most notable being the Library's Legislative Biographical File. In addition, in its manuscript materials, the Library has a set of questionnaires issued by the newspaper, the Boston Journal, to legislators in the sessions of 1868 through 1892. Answers were published in the newspaper on the first day of each new legislative session. Responding to the questionnaire in their own hand, members provided information about their occupations, education, party affiliations, and civil and military offices held. Another manuscript holding provides information about the newspapers subscribed to by legislators in the years 1842 through 1850.

All of the sources outlined here, plus the Legislative Biographical File, can be consulted to provide a feeling of legislative life as it unfolded in the past. Each new legislative session provides further information as a new Bird Book arrives and information is added to the Biographical File.

PROGRAM NOTES

Displays - February displays in celebration of Black History Month are: "In Honor of Dr. Martin Luther King,Jr." in room 442; and two displays outside room 341. "The 54th Massachusetts Volunteers" and "A Historical Look at Afro-Americans in Massachusetts" present selections from the State Library's collections.

Conservation - Preservation and proper care of its materials are of primary concern to the staff of the State Library. For this reason, we were pleased to be among the institutions selected to receive a grant-funded consultation. In January, staff members of the North-east Document Conservation Center, a regional conservation resource specializing in preservation of library and archival materials, visited the State Library. During this visit, the consultants reviewed the building environment and examined the condition of collections; a written report advising on environmental standards, paper storage and handling, and needs for conservation treatment will follow. Advice and plans gleaned from this request will be valuable in pre-serving the Library's unique collections.

State Documents - Chapter 412 of the Acts of 1984 established the State Library as the official depository for state agency publications. While the Library has served in this capacity since 1826, the new law formally recognizes and acknowledges the importance of the Library's role in collecting government information. The state document depository system, whereby the State Library distributes copies of state documents to libraries across the state, is also included in the new law. The distribution program to the state's regional public libraries, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and the Library of Congress, has been in existence since 1975. Documents Librarian Susan Steinway (Tel. 727-6279) welcomes questions about the program and copies of your documents.

STATE DOCUMENTS DEPOSITORY LAW

Governor Michael S. Dukakis addressed the Trustees of the State Library, Directors of the Boston Library Consortium, Regional Librarians, and guests at the Massachusetts State Library on Tuesday, March 26, 1985 at a reception to celebrate the passage of the new state documents depository law (St. 1984, c. 412).

The Trustees of the State Library, State Librarian Gasper Caso, and Library staff hosted the reception from 1:30 to 2:30 on that day at the State Library.

UBLICATION: #14,002 - APPROVED BY DANIEL CARTER, STATE PURCHASING AGENT

The Library Trustees are: Senate President William Bulger, with Mr. John Cronin serving as his designee; House Speaker George Keverian, with Representative Marie Parente serving as his designee; Secretary of State Michael Joseph Connolly, with Dr. Albert Whitaker serving as his designee; Ms. Frances Faletra; Ms. Virginia Bernard; Mr. E. William Johnson, and Mr. I. Albert Matkov.

Prior to signing a commemorative copy of the bill, Governor Dukakis recalled his experience in using the State Library during his many years in state government. While serving as a freshman legislator, the Governor stated that he found the State Library to be an essential resource. Confirming his belief in the importance of a "first-rate" State Library, Governor Dukakis commended State Librarian Gasper Caso for the many improvements in the Library as well as the staff's continued fine service.

The new depository law serves as formal recognition of the State Library's role in collecting, preserving and distributing Massachusetts state agency publications. The State Library, founded in 1826, was established as a respository for state documents and has the most complete collection of Massachusetts state documents in existence. Since 1975, the State Library has provided state documents to a network of depository libraries. The Boston Public Library, Worcester Public Library, Springfield City Library, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and the Library of Congress receive shipments of state documents from the State Library. Citizen access to state government information is ensured through this program of interlibrary cooperation.

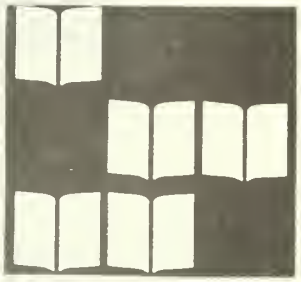
STATE DOCUMENTS

The State Library has collected Massachusetts state documents since 1826. Documents held by the State Library represent many different types of publications. Thanks to the cooperation of state agencies over time, the Library's collection includes documents of both an historic and a current nature. A selection from the collection is presented here.



ANNUAL REPORTS

The State Library has been receiving annual reports from State agencies for many years. These constitute an important research source for information on state government, past, present and future.

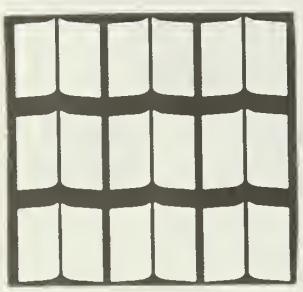
LEGISLATIVE REPORTS

The State Library has a complete set of legislative documents and has cataloged reports from special legislative commissions. Indexes to special reports in the legislative documents set are available from 1826 to the present.

An important new addition to these special reports is:



Mass. Special Legislative Commission on Lowlevel Radioactive Waste.
First report. 1985. 104p.

SPECIAL FORMATS

A state document can be material other than a printed report or pamphlet. Although the majority of publications issued by state agencies appear as books or pamphlets, the Library's collections also include materials from these agencies in a variety of formats.

- MAPS -

Maps are issued currently by numerous state agencies and have been in the past. Three examples serve to illustrate the variety of state publications to be found in the map collection:

Map
Boston
1870

Massachusetts. Board of Harbor Commissioners.
Boston Harbor improvements: sketch showing works in main ship channel carried on under the direction of Lt. Col. J.G. Foster. 1870.

Map
Mass.
1984

Map
Mass.
1984

Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management: Division of Forests and Parks.
Massachusetts forests and parks. 1984.

- ATLASES -

Atlases have also formed a part of the publication record of the agencies. Formed in 1884, the Massachusetts Topographical Survey Commission was given the assignment "to cooperate with the U.S. Geological Survey in preparation of a contour topographical survey and map of Massachusetts." Under its auspices, an atlas was produced entitled:

Atlas
Mass.
1884-
1888

Massachusetts Topographical Survey Commission.
Atlas of Massachusetts from topographical surveys made in cooperation by the United States Geological Survey and the Commissioners of the Commonwealth. 1884-1888.

The Commission went on to issue a series of atlases outlining the boundaries of various communities in the Commonwealth, of which the following is an example:

Atlas
Mass.
Attle-
borough
1900

Massachusetts Topographical Survey Commission.
Atlas of the boundaries of the town of Attleborough, Bristol County. 1900.

- OTHER FORMATS -

Proclamations and broadsides provide another type of format in the Library's collection. Of particular interest is a collection of Revolutionary War broadsides issued in part by the Massachusetts Legislature. These items provided a means of communication at the time and now form a dramatic narrative of events in the Boston area at the time of the Revolution.

Typical of this type of publication is:

Broadside 39	Whereas it appears necessary for the defense of the lives, liberties and properties of the inhabitants of this province... should be made fully acquainted with the number and military equipments of the militia and minutemen of this province... February 14, 1775.

Within the last year the library has received for its collection a "Get Alarmed" tee shirt from the Exec. Office of Consumer Affairs and a set of posters of each of the State Heritage Parks from the Department of Environmental Management. We welcome anything produced by a state agency, whatever the format.

Part II discusses legislation proposed by the Administration to remove statutory impediments to good management. A status report on the Grace Commission's recommendations is included as an appendix.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library's Special Collections include items which are distinguished from the general collections due to their age, format, visual interest, or intrinsic value. All of the materials in Special Collections are listed in the card catalogue and are available in Room 55 of the State House.

Recent additions to the Special Collections include two panoramic or bird's-eye view maps. Issued during the late 19th and early 20th centuries, this popular cartographic form portrays cities and towns as if viewed from above at an oblique angle. Although not generally drawn to scale, the views show street patterns, individual buildings, and major landscape features in perspective.

Added recently to the Library's extensive holdings of these panoramic views are:

Map O.H. Bailey & Co.
Mass. North Grafton, Massachusetts.
Grafton Illustrated and with an index to points of interest.

Cataloguing of Sanborn insurance maps and atlases completed

The Library recently received a collection of Sanborn insurance maps and atlases as a gift from the New Hampshire State Library. Covering 55 Massachusetts communities, this group complements the Library's existing collection of these materials. All of the maps received have now been catalogued and are ready for use. They can be located through the Library's card catalogue in Room 341.

Produced for the fire insurance industry, these maps and atlases now provide a great deal of detail concerning the types of structures in a community, the materials of which they were constructed and the position of industrial areas, railroads and mills. Among the communities included in the newly added volumes are Quincy, Medford, Cambridge and Lawrence, as well as a number of smaller communities in the state.

INFORMATION FILE

The Information File contains public affairs material published by other states, private research groups, professional associations and lobbies. Selected new additions to the file are listed here.

Displays

Displays for the month of March include a display celebrating "Greek Independence Day - March 25th" and one highlighting the "Massachusetts State Library - the official depository for state publications". These two displays are located outside Room 341. A selection of "Massachusetts Documents" is displayed in Room 442.

April displays will focus on recognition of National Library Week, April 14-20, and Armenian Genocide, April 22-30.

TOURS/ORIENTATION SESSIONS

State Library staff members recently presented a series of four workshops for new legislative aides in the House of Representatives. The workshops, designed to meet the research needs of aides, featured sessions on: Services and Resources of the State Library; Massachusetts Legal Research; State and Federal Regulations; and Legislative History. All participants reported that the workshops were very relevant in performing their job duties.

PERIODICAL ARTICLES

A selection of current journal articles is listed here. Magazines and newspapers are available in Room 442 of the State Library.

(1) "Afro-American Families," Vital Speeches, March 15, 1985, pp. 331-333. Analyzes the historical strength of Afro-American families and their future potential for contributing to the struggle for equality.

NEWSPAPER COLLECTION

The State Library currently receives over 100 newspapers, including those of many cities and towns in Massachusetts. We keep all of our papers for three months, with back issues of some of these available on microfilm. For most newspapers, the current month is located on the balcony, and issues for the previous two months should be requested at the periodical reference desk in Room 442. However, for the Boston Globe and the Boston Herald, issues are kept on the balcony for three months, until they are replaced by a microfilm copy.

The bins used to store the newspapers are in the process of being replaced with hanging files. The newspapers are filed in folders, and each folder is labeled with the dates of the papers filed in it. This system was created by the Technical Services Department to provide library users with easier access to the newspaper collection. Should you have further questions please contact the periodical reference desk at 727-2594.

Connely, Dwight W.

"Amending The Constitution: Is This Any Way To Call for a Constitutional Convention?" Arizona LR 22 (1980): 1011-1036.

This article describes the history of Article V, the procedures for applying for a constitutional convention, and the scope of a constitutional convention.

Dellinger, Walter.

"The Amending Process In Canada and the United States: A Comparative Perspective." Law and Contemporary Problems 45 (Autumn 1982): 283-302.

A comparison of the American and Canadian Amendment process from an historical perspective.

Foster, Edward.

"The Balanced Budget Amendment and Economic Thought." Constitutional Commentary 2 (Sumner 1985): 353-371.

The proposed constitutional amendment on a balanced federal budget, the economic philosophy of its proponents, and its impact on the economy are discussed.

Gunther, Gerald.

"The Convention Method of Amending The United States Constitution." Georgia LR 14 (Fall 1979): 1-25.

The recent movement for a constitutional convention to mandate a federal balanced budget is discussed, as well as the constitutional convention process in general.

Linder, Douglas.

"What In The Consititution Cannot Be Amended?" Arizona LR 23 (1981): 717-733.

Addresses the origins of Article V, the limitations of the power to amend, and unamendable amendments.

Special Collections

The State Library's Special Collections include items which are distinguished from the general collections by their age, format, visual interest or intrinsic value. All of the materials in Special Collections are listed in the Library's card catalogue; they must be used in the Special Collections Reading Room, Room 55 of the State House.

The Library's Special Collections contain many items of relevance to the study of the formation and ratification of the Constitution. Among these are:

Massachusetts Centinel, 1787, 1788.
Independent Chronicle, 1787, 1788.

Because the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia were intended to be secret, people learned of the proposed Constitution in many cases after the close of the convention through articles in newspapers. These two newspapers contained printings of the text of the Constitution, letters to the editors and commentary from prominent citizens, as well as full reports of the Massachusetts Convention to ratify the Constitution.

1787-1788; From Debate to Ratification

The Constitution or Frame of Government, for the United States of America... Together with the Resolutions of the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, for calling said Convention, 1787.

A pamphlet printing of the proposed Constitution, published prior to its ratification. Includes resolutions of the General Court for calling a Massachusetts ratification convention.
Spec. Coll., Pam/342.73/3C:1787

Elliot, Jonathan.
The Debates, Resolutions and other Proceedings, in Convention, on the adoption of the adoption of the Federal Constitution... 1827-30; 1861.

Known as Elliot's Debates, this source, in its various editions, is basic for the study of constitutional history.
Spec. Coll., 342.73/(1787), 2C:E46d

Debates, Resolutions and other Proceedings of the Convention of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, convened at Boston, on the 9th of January, 1788,... for the purpose of assenting to and ratifying the Constitution, 1788, 1808, 1856.

The proceedings in the Massachusetts ratification convention were reported in three different editions, the most complete being the 1856 printing. This edition contains the proceedings of the General Court, the Journal of the Convention, and other documents of interest
Spec.Coll./342.73M3/(1788)/IC:D28.

The Federalist, on the new Constitution..., 1818.

A series of 85 essays, first published in newspapers, advocating the Constitution, and written by Jay, Madison and Hamilton.
Spec.Coll./342.73/(1787)/4C:F29f.

Madison, James.
The Papers of James Madison. 1840.

Includes the first publication of Madison's report of debates in the Federal Constitutional Convention.
Spec.Coll./B/M1823zp.

Yates, Robert.
Secret Proceedings and Debates of the Convention assembled at Philadelphia..., 1821.

Yates, a delegate to the Federal Convention from New York, left the Convention in July 5, 1787. However, his report of the proceedings is second only to Madison's in importance.
Spec.Coll./342.73/(1787)/IC:S44.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library's Special Collections include items which are distinguished from the general collections by their age, format, visual interest or intrinsic value. All of the materials in Special Collections are listed in the Library's card catalogue; they must be used in the Special Collections Reading Room, Room 55 of the State House.

Materials to commemorate the celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The Library is collecting materials from many organizations across the Commonwealth which reflect how the Bicentennial is being commemorated in Massachusetts. Items have been received from the Governor's Advisory Commission on the Bicentennial and from local community Bicentennial commissions. Included in the collection are pamphlets, brochures, souvenirs and other memorabilia, all of which will give a sense to future historians of the kinds of activities which took place during this celebration.

Photographs of Legislative Committees.
The Library has recently added to its collection a group of photographs depicting members of various legislative committees. Dating from the 1920's and 1930's, the photos show members of the Ways and Means, Motor Vehicle, and Taxation Committees, among others. A list of individuals depicted in the group photographs will be compiled and kept in the Special Collections Department.

Records and Papers of the Community Music Center of Boston.
This recent gift to the Library includes the records of two settlement houses, the Boston Music School Settlement and the South End Music School, both organized in 1910, "for the purpose of giving children of limited means an opportunity to secure a musical education..." The collection includes many photographs which provide a unique look at a type of institution which helped to shape the cultural life of the city in many ways.

HAZARDOUS WASTE RECYLING

HAZARDOUS WASTE/TOXIC WASTE

Book volumes

Brown, Michael.
Laying Waste. 1980.
Provides case studies of communities labelled "toxic time bombs" due to chemical dumping.
TD/811.5/.B76

Epstein, Samuel, et al.
Hazardous Waste in America. 1982.
Chronicles the concerns of environmentalists with hazardous waste generation.
TD/811.5/.E67/1982

Geiser, Kenneth, et al.
High Tech Toxics. 1984.
Suggests that the toxic wastes generated by high tech industries place Massachusetts communities at a health risk.
TD/811.5/.H53/1984

Greenberg, Michael.
Hazardous Waste Sites. 1984.
States that there is a credibility gap between hazardous waste producers and waste regulators. Suggests policy changes.
TD/811.5/.G74/1984

Hall, Ridgway M., Jr. et al.
RCRA Hazardous Wastes Handbook. 1987.
Details the provisions of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) which E.P.A. administers.
Ref/TD/811.5/.R34/1987

Mass. Division of Hazardous Waste.
List of Confirmed Disposal Sites and Locations to be Investigated. (quarterly)
Lists remedial and confirmed sites where releases of oil and materials are located. Deleted sites and those waiting investigation are included.
MR/333.03M3/S56/date

Mass. Division of Hazardous Waste.
Hazardous Waste Site Response: A Resource Plan. 1987.
Provides descriptions, plans, programs and resources for the November 1986 referendum question 4. Report includes a five year capital budget plan as well as a section on revenue generation.
MR/333.03M3/H38/1987

Mass. Division of Hazardous Waste.
Massachusetts Contingency Plan: Public Hearing and Discussion Papers Draft. 1987.
Contains several discussion papers which relate to hazardous waste. Among the subjects covered are: site classification; technical assistance; grants; public involvement.
MR/333.03M3/M47/1987

Mass. Division of Hazardous Waste.
Spill Notification Regulations: Public Hearing Draft, Discussion Papers. 1987.
Proposes regulations for oil and hazardous materials and identifies emergency situations. Discussion papers provide options for each situation.
MR/333.03M3/S65/1985

Mass. Division of Hazardous Waste.
A Summary of Requirements for Small Generators of Hazardous Waste. 1988. (Effective Feb. 1988)
Summarizes a part of the Massachusetts Hazardous Waste regulations. Classification, paperwork, housekeeping and very small quantity generators are covered here.
MR/333.03M3/S86/1988

Mass. Division of Solid and Hazardous Waste.
Biennial Program Report for 1985. 1986.
Provides the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency with information on Massachusetts' waste generation, disposal facilities and other hazardous waste operations.
MR/333.03M3/B43/1987

JOURNAL ARTICLES ON THE ENVIRONMENT

Koines, Arthur. "A scorecard on the environment." EPA Journal, v.14, May 1988, pp. 8-10.
Discusses pollution in urban rivers, municipal waste management, air toxic, and lead levels in drinking water, the air, and buildings.

Livernash, Robert. "Wrapping up the 100th Congress." Environment, v. 30, Nov. 1988. pp. 5, 41-43.
Summarizes the accomplishments of the 100th Congress on the environment, energy, and natural resources.

Lamm, Richard and Barron, Thomas. "The environmental agenda for the next administration." Environment, v. 30, May 1988, pp. 16-20, 28-29.
Reducing the environmental damage of the past will need to be worked out within the context of shrinking available resources and cost-effective solutions. Focused attention will be required to establish clear priorities, implement a policy of cost-effective regulations, reform wasteful public land policy, and encourage a global vision.

Steppacher, Lee and Gallagher, Tara. "A Resource-Based Approach to Groundwater Protection." Environment, v. 30, May 1988, pp. 5, 45.
Presents a pilot study in Barnstable aimed at protecting one well head, the area that provides a well with water. Zoning, site inspections, enforcement of water quality standards, land-use inventories, and regulatory and hydrogeological studies were used to develop a comprehensive approach. What resulted from the Cape Cod Aquifier Management Project was a model groundwater protection program applicable to other regions.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

The State Library Special Collections include those materials which can be located in Rm 55 or through the card catalogs in Rm. 341. Among the unique materials to be found in Special Collections are broadsides, newspapers, maps and atlases, architectural plans, rare books, scrapbooks, memorabilia manuscript and manuscript collections, photographs, prints, pictures.

Massachusetts. General Court. Special Legislative Commission on Low-Level Radioactive Waste. Records. This vital collection takes up the problem of what is low level radioactive waste, and the evolution of the legislation creating the Special Commissio Low-level radioactive waste includes materials such as wiping rags, protective clothing, sludges and resins and is a by-product of the manufacture of exit signs, smoke detectors, radioactive chemicals, the generation of electricity at nuclear power plants, to name some. It is a very real threat to life and the environment. The Commission's responsibility was to find safe ways to dispose of these substances, and the Collection chronicles its legislative origins in Congress in 1981 to the formation of the Massachusetts Commission. H5830 of 1987 was passed by the Legislature and signed into law as Chapter 549 by Governor Michael Dukakis as The Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Act.

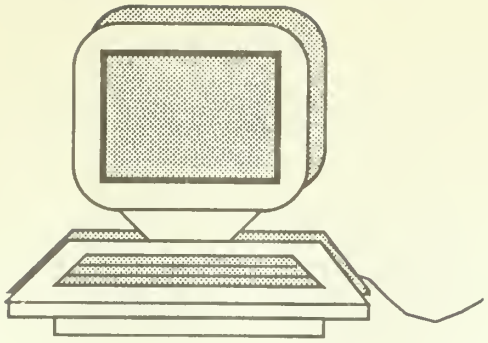
CD-ROM at State Library

The State Library has improved access to its collection by means of five CD-ROM products.

CD-ROM stands for "compact disk read only memory." Each CD-ROM disk holds the equivalent of 250,000 pages of text. The disks are read by means of laser optic technology.

These CD-ROM products are ideal for compiling large amounts of information, such as indexes. Using the CD-ROM for federal documents, for example, it is possible to search through all federal documents published since June 1976 with a few simple keystrokes. Researchers, then, can avoid searching through thirteen years of annual indexes.



In addition to speed of searching, the CD-ROM products allow for more flexible methods of searching. Looking for an article in the Massachusetts Law Review with the words "Tort Reform" in the title? The Index to Legal Periodicals on CD-ROM can perform this search quickly.

Currently, the State Library subscribes to four CD-ROM products:

- PAIS (Public Affairs Information Service): provides access to selected state/federal documents, new monographs and journal articles related to government affairs.

- Index to Legal Periodicals: provides access to law review/bar journal articles from May 1981 to 1989.

- Books in Print: provides access to publishers' current stock.

- Government Documents Index: provides access to federal documents published since June 1976. (The State Library is a selective depository for Federal documents.)

PAIS on
CD-ROM
NOW—the same authoritative indexes to public affairs and public policy literature, national and international, that have contributed to scholarship, business and government for almost 75 years, are available in this remarkable new form. Over 275,000 records from journals, reports, government documents, and books published throughout the world—on one durable disc.

- InfoTrac II: provides access to current interest magazines such as Boston, Newsweek, Time since 1985. Also includes coverage for last 60 days of New York Times.

The Library staff is always available to introduce researchers to the CD-ROM databases. Make a point to investigate these sources during your next visit to the State Library.
